West Chester Leads County's New Job Creation

An estimated 2,000 of the 3,300 jobs created in Butler County in 2012 can be attributed to West Chester Township. The Ohio Department of Job and Family Services reports this region led the state in job creation with nearly 25,000 new jobs created in 2012.

West Chester Township's Community Development Department tracks job creation based upon new business permits filed in the community.

"West Chester has continued to see new business growth during challenging economic times and now we are beginning to see even more activity and interest from prospective companies," said West Chester Community Development Director Mike Juengling.

West Chester's largest employer is GE Aviation with approximately 2,000 employees. GE Aviation is headquartered at North Pointe Office Park at Union Centre Boulevard and Cincinnati-Dayton Road. Other GE subsidiaries also do business in West Chester making GE's total employment presence even greater than 2,000.

Cornerstone Group, Pierre Frozen Foods, Procter & Gamble, West Chester Hospital and Netrada round out the list of West Chester's top employers.

"Companies continue to find value in West Chester's exceptional services, available properties, infrastructure and amenities," Mr. Juengling said. "The community's strategic location and accessibility also play a role in its continued economic success."

West Chester's jobless rate is 4.6%, less than Butler County's jobless rate of 6%, Ohio's 6.6% unemployment rate and the national unemployment rate of 7.6%.

Job creation is a significant indicator of economic health in any community and especially in terms of the welfare of the citizenry. Although no local income tax exists in West Chester Township the community does benefit indirectly from money being injected into the local economy by those who work here.

West Chester's professional economic development staff is on hand to support new and existing businesses in the community. The full-service, one-stop Community Development department offers experienced staff in planning, zoning and economic development issues. For assistance with your development needs, call 513-777-4214.

4th Quarter 2012

West Chester Leads County's New Job Creation

An estimated 2,000 of the 3,300 jobs created in Butler County in 2012 can be attributed to West Chester Township. The Ohio Department of Job and Family Services reports this region led the state in job creation with nearly 25,000 new jobs created in 2012.

West Chester Township's Community Development Department tracks job creation based upon new business permits filed in the community.

"West Chester has continued to see new business growth during challenging economic times and now we are beginning to see even more activity and interest from prospective companies," said West Chester Community Development Director Mike Juengling.

West Chester's largest employer is GE Aviation with approximately 2,000 employees. GE Aviation is headquartered at North Pointe Office Park at Union Centre Boulevard and Cincinnati-Dayton Road. Other GE subsidiaries also do business in West Chester making GE's total employment presence even greater than 2,000.

Cornerstone Group, Pierre Frozen Foods, Procter & Gamble, West Chester Hospital and Netrada round out the list of West Chester's top employers.

"Companies continue to find value in West Chester's exceptional services, available properties, infrastructure and amenities," Mr. Juengling said. "The community's strategic location and accessibility also play a role in its continued economic success."

West Chester's jobless rate is 4.6%, less than Butler County's jobless rate of 6%, Ohio's 6.6% unemployment rate and the national unemployment rate of 7.6%.

Job creation is a significant indicator of economic health in any community and especially in terms of the welfare of the citizenry. Although no local income tax exists in West Chester Township the community does benefit indirectly from money being injected into the local economy by those who work here.

West Chester's professional economic development staff is on hand to support new and existing businesses in the community. The full-service, one-stop Community Development department offers experienced staff in planning, zoning and economic development issues. For assistance with your development needs, call 513-777-4214.
